Around the Police Station
For a nice meal, the foundation of which was a nice little dog brought up in a Japanese family, ten dollars is the price that George Sniffen has been compelled to pay, the price of a good dinner at the Moana with a couple of cold bots and hot birds thrown in. The price for Sniffen's meal was set yesterday morning in police court by Judge Andrade. It was shown that Sniffen purloined the dog from its Japanese owners and then prepared the doggie outlets. The Japanese traced up their missing pet and found some of its hair near the Sniffen home. Detectives traced the theft down to Mr. Sniffen.
Lee Chee Mun was fined $50 and costs for selling opium without a license. Ah Yong and six companions who were arrested for gambling were discharged owing to lack of evidence against them.

READ THIS, YE BRUTE HUSBANDS!
The most extraordinary book of the fall season is a diatribe against marriage by the modern matrimonial system on the ground that it compels women to go into matrimony as their only trade. Even when she attempts any other she is so oppressed by men in the matter of small wages or improper attentions that her state is even worse than that of matrimony, which is held by the critic to be degrading. Not Jeremiah nor Theristes was more apt in using vitriolic language nor in showering scathing anathemas upon the heads of the male members of the human species, who are held to be worse than the brutes. We are informed that there is no such thing as love in the male breast, save as an insidious use of psychology to ensnare women. Men buy women in these days more openly than in the oriental markets of past ages, and treat their wives with much more severity. Men confine women's exertions to motherhood and making a home pleasant for the males, while the wives sink gradually into intellectual sloth and die dishonored and disgraced. And more to the same purpose. Also it is intimated that the male opinion is that all women over fifty ought to be shot.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
